One Hundred years ago, in 1917, the United States broke its long-held neutrality and entered World War I. American airmen officially began flying operations in Europe under US command.

The fledgling branch was called the "Air Service of the American Expeditionary Force" and operated European-made aircraft, primarily of French and English design. In April 1917, the Air Service operated only three flying squadrons. By the end of that year, there were 53.

A handful of American pilots had seen combat prior to this, but these few were volunteers serving with the French Air Force in a group known as the Lafayette Escadrille. Upon America's entry into the war, these pilots were mostly absorbed into the newly formed squadrons of the AAS and fought under the US flag. They imparted their hard-earned battle lessons onto the rookie pilots just out of training.

Barnstormers

As hundreds of pilots returned home after WWI, many put their flying skills to work to grow America's infant aviation industry: building airports, flying clubs, airlines, air mail services, crop dusting, and more. Americans fell in love with all things related to speed, technology, and daring.

Barnstorming was a form of entertainment in which stunt pilots performed tricks, either individually or in groups called flying circuses. Devised to impress people with the skill of pilots and the sturdiness of planes, it became popular in the United States during the Roaring Twenties. Barnstormers were pilots who flew throughout the country selling airplane rides and performing stunts.

Barnstorming "seemed to be founded on bravado, with 'one-upmanship' a major incentive."

Barnstormers performed a variety of stunts, with some specializing as stunt pilots or "aerialists." Stunt pilots performed a variety of aerobatic maneuvers, including spins, dives, loop-the-loops and barrel rolls, while aerialists performed feats of wing walking, stunt parachuting, midair plane transfers, or even playing tennis, target shooting, and dancing on the plane's wings. Other stunts included nose dives and flying through barns.

Also: The 104th Fighter Wing of the Massachusetts Air National Guard is nicknamed the "Barnstormers" a play on the airport's name of Barnes... and evokes the skill and daring of those early aviators who thrilled and inspired all across America.

Health of the Force

By Michelle Pennington, 104th Fighter Wing Director of Psychological Health

The Air National Guard strives to provide the supports needed to ensure Comprehensive Airmen Fitness. However, losses in the Guard continue.

Suicide is not the only concern. Health concerns and safety issues that arise due to stress, lack of sleep, financial and relationship strains impede quality of life and mission readiness.

Please take a moment to take the survey in “Drill Bits” tab on SharePoint. The survey is anonymous and will provide valuable information about specific issues that affect ANG Members and families.

<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/hotf>

Everyone experiences the normal stresses of life – finances, work, family caregiving, relationships. If you or someone you know has questions about resources or supports available, please reach out to our Base Resources. Addressing concerns early can relieve stress, maintain job performance and prevent larger concerns from developing.

Safety: How goes it?

By Tech. Sgt. Angelica Mendoza, 104th Fighter Wing Safety Office

Hello Barnestormers,

I would like to introduce to you our new Chief of Safety, Maj. Andrew “Shot Gun” Avery and to me.

Maj. Avery enlisted in the Air Force on Dec. 3, 1997, after completing a Bachelor’s of Science in Political Science. He became a heating, ventilation, air conditioning and refrigeration (HVAC/R) apprentice as an airman first class. His first duty station was at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where he was accepted into Officer Training School. He went on to graduate in March of 2000 with a slot in Undergraduate Navigator Training at Naval Air Station Pensacola, Fla. Maj. Avery was selected as an F-15E Strike Eagle Weapons Systems Officer midway through his training at Pensacola. He attended the B-Course for F-15Es at Seymour-Johnson AFB, N.C. in 2001-2002 and was assigned to the 494th Fighter Squadron at Royal Air Force Lakenheath, UK.

While assigned to the 494th FS, he deployed to Al Udeid Air Base, Qatar in July of 2003 in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. In more than five months at Al Udeid, Maj. Avery flew 47 combat missions and accumulated over 240 combat hours in the F-15E. Shortly after returning from the deployment, he was selected to attend Undergraduate Pilot Training at Columbus AFB, Miss. At UPT, he was selected for fighters and eventually awarded a slot as a pilot in the World’s Greatest Air Superiority Fighter, the F-15C Eagle. After graduating from the B-Course at Tyndall AFB, Fla., he was assigned to Eglin AFB, where he spent almost three years as a member of the 60th and then 58th Fighter Squadrons.

Maj. Avery went on to spend three years at the 44th FS at Kadena AB, Okinawa, Japan, followed by 65th and 64th Aggressor Squadrons, and then 561st Joint Tactics Squadron at Nellis AFB, Nev. It was while serving at the 561st JTS that his fortune changed and he was hired by the 104th Fighter Wing. Maj. Avery swore into the Massachusetts Air National Guard on March 16, 2017 after 19 years and 3+ months on Active Duty. During those years, he met and married his wife, Kirstin, who is a former Intel Officer in the USAF, and hopeful future member of the 104 FW. While at Nellis, they had two children: their son, Duke, who is now four years old; and their daughter, Ryen, who just turned two years old. Their family could not be happier to be members of the Barnestormers and look forward to many years of service to the state and our nation.

I am Tech. Sgt. Angelica Mendoza, the new Occupational Safety Technician for the 104th Fighter Wing. I have been a member at Barnes for a little under eight years, with my first career field in Bioenvironmental Engineering within the Medical Group. I am currently pursuing my Degree in Occupational Safety and Health, prompting the decision to cross train into Occupational Safety. Becoming a member of the Wing Safety staff has been a great opportunity for me to continue broadening my knowledge and skills within my desired industry. I am looking forward to continuing to apply all that I learn to serve the members of the 104th Fighter Wing.

Worship Schedule

Worship will not be held during the August Drill.

Worship will resume on the September drill weekend.

If you need to talk, the Chapel Team will be out and about. You can also stop in for a chat at the Base Chapel (Building 12, aka. the Fitness Center) or call ahead at ext. 698-1057.

THE SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE
CHIEF OF STAFF, UNITED STATES AIR FORCE
WASHINGTON DC

JUL 31 2017

To the Airmen of the United States Air Force:

For more than 70 years, our fellow Americans have asked you to be the sentinels of air and space for the nation, delivering unmatched capabilities every day. The demand for what you, as American Airmen, bring to the fight will only increase. We will continue to lead and support the Joint Force in defending our homeland, owning the high ground, and projecting power with our allies. As the most dominant air force in the world, we will continue to face serious and ever-changing threats. In order to ensure our Air Force remains lethal and ready when the nation calls, we have established the following Air Force priorities:

- Restore readiness ... to win any fight, any time.
- Cost-effectively modernize ... to increase the lethality of the force.
- Drive innovation ... to secure our future.
- Develop exceptional leaders ... to lead the world's most powerful teams.
- Strengthen our alliances ... because we are stronger together.

Everything we do as a team should advance or augment these priorities. Each and every one of our Total Force Airmen has a role to play in making us successful in this endeavor. We will prevail through the power of our Airmen.

You and your families represent our nation's absolute best. We are humbled to lead this great Air Force and honored to serve with you every day.

Caregivers Retreat

With Emery A. Popoloski, Fellows Program Coordinator, THE ELIZABETH DOLE FOUNDATION

Project New Hope Inc. is pleased to offer our first annual free retreat for military and veteran caregivers – Veteran's parent, or spouse, or in some cases adult children (over the age of 18) who have taken on the incredible responsibility of caring for a wounded veteran or service member. These men and women consistently put the well-being of their loved ones before their own, and the physical and emotional toll of this responsibility can be devastating, making respite and self-care crucial to the health of these hidden heroes.

In collaboration with the Elizabeth Dole Foundation, Project New Hope will offer activities and support throughout the retreat that focus specifically on the needs of military caregivers.

Oceanwood offers these caregivers a private, comfortable haven to heal, rejuvenate and connect with other caregivers.

104th Members Mentor Military Kids at Camp Bog Brook

By Master Sgt. Fred Fopiano, 104th Communications Squadron Telecommunications Systems Specialist

Bog Brook Military Kid's Camp in Gilead, Maine is an amazing camp for military children. The Children's ages can range from two to 16, and they are taught a variety of skillsets including; survival techniques, hiking, rappelling, swimming, archery, paintball and more.

All of the children's parents are currently serving in the military, and are or have recently deployed. They also work with Gold Star children. Those are children whose parent or parents have been killed in overseas combat.

We are with the children 24/7 for a week and create a bond with each one assigned to us. My years as a First Sergeant and a Master Resiliency Trainer were put to the test.

This camp is generally limited to Maine Air and Army National Guard but was opened up to my daughter, Alessandra, when my wife, Tech. Sgt. Sue Fopiano, offered for us to be counselors to the children.

On the last full day with the children, we took them to Story Land Amusement Park near Mount Washington. It is the day the children look forward to but also dread as they know their week is nearly over.

I have been doing this for three years now and to say it's exhausting is an understatement, but so worthwhile.

The interaction with the children and being a stand in mom or dad for them is both a heartwarming and heart-wrenching experience that you will cherish for the rest of your life.

They are always looking for help; so if you have a week or two available to donate to children, please contact me and I will provide you the information.

We were presented Certificates of Appreciation from the Adjutant General of Maine— Brig. Gen. Douglas A. Farnham and we were thanked by the Governor of Maine's Wife, First Lady Ann Lepage.
