It may be true what they say that time and age can give you wisdom and perspective. After almost 36 years in the Massachusetts Air National Guard, and over 32+ years working either part-time or full-time in this Wing with hundreds of you, I have a few perspectives to share with you that I feel help make our Wing successful.

The key to our continued success as a Wing is you!

Who me? Yes, you! No matter whether you are the newest Airmen in our Student Flight or the oldest chief master sergeant, our success starts with you. I have often explained to people why I think the 104th Fighter Wing “Barnestormers” have something different, some special DNA, which collectively produces outstanding results. This something different, in my opinion, is the inherent belief that they can make a difference; and then, most importantly, they actually do it. I have seen this both at home and while deployed.

The 104th Fighter Wing and other high performing organizations produce outstanding results due to having large numbers of these type of people at all levels of the unit. They look around and actively seek out ways to do their very best each day in every area. This attitude spreads to others and builds on itself creating pockets of motivated and focused effort to produce the best product or service for the section. Think about your unit or section. Are you in this pocket? If not, why not? If you are going to spend 2 days a month and/or 40-60 hours a week here, why would you not commit to do your very best? My perspective is that most of our members commit to doing their best for their team members, their sections, their unit, and our Wing. The proof is in the results which show up in our inspections, deployments, in our training exercises, as well as our day to day activities. You make the difference.

Attitude Matters!

As I speak to people around the Wing, I hear from dedicated, hardworking, positive people who are making a difference and helping to build their team success. I see their energy and passion for our mission and it gives me energy. Positive energy attracts positive energy. You know this. Who wants to work with or hang out with a negative person? Not me. They are energy and productivity parasites, which slowly feed on anything that is happy, energetic, hardworking, and productive. No, these are not the skeptical or the constructive critics that challenge assumptions. Organizations need a free-flow of opinions and views to ensure any blind spots or internal barriers are identified and brought to light for discussion. That is productive and necessary. I am speaking about the destructive and disruptive negative energy. These people are generally (Commander Cont. on pg 3) unhappy about where they are in life, blame others and make it their mission to draw you in, building their “pit of misery” coalition. If allowed to continue, it can slowly and insidiously infect the positive energy members and take focus away from achieving the mission. The positive, proactive members are the only cure to the infection. They make it hard for the others to spread their negative energy, attract others and dilute the focus on the mission. As the positive attitudes and energy team members rally, it creates an environment of “can do, will do” energy that takes care of each other and the mission. This forces a tough choice for the negative person. A choice to either change their attitude and behavior and join the team or look for a place outside of the shop or even the unit, since they cannot exist without others in their dwindling pit of misery and negative energy. Attitude matters. Start each day with the right attitude and the rest will be easier.

Communication is important! Do it often.

We are humans and we need to communicate with each other to facilitate understanding and build trust. This is true for all of us. When you work as hard as we do every day, you want to know about your team members, supervisor, and leaders. Now I am not stating you need to share every detail of your life and all your thoughts and feelings on all your social media with everyone in your shop or section. That is TMI! I am saying that you ask how others are doing; know about them as a person; and share experiences that help to foster trust, friendship, and Esprit de Corp. This is especially important if you are in a supervisory or leadership position. You have an added responsibility to communicate. Find ways to connect with those around you. Have coffee and say hello in the morning. Go to lunch. Attend social events and be “in the moment” with people. Find that opportunity to connect and be open to dialogue, feedback, and different opinions. It’s not always comfortable and may not be returned, but give it a go. People want to know about you; what you think; and what you value to help them decide if they can trust you. Communication builds trust. Trust builds commitment. Commitment builds teamwork. Teamwork builds mission success. It all starts with communication.

Respect for others is critical to team performance.

Look around. We are all not alike and we have differences. We will not all agree on everything. We make mistakes. We sometimes unintentional hurt others due to being too focused on ourselves, or not valuing differences, or being unaware of how our words and actions can hurt. Some of the challenges we have had as a team occur when we have someone who breaks the trust granted to them by disrespecting others physically or emotionally. We must not allow this to happen. It hurts the individuals affected and degrades our culture of respect and dignity for all. Respect the differences we all bring to the 104th Fighter Wing team. Be open to new ideas and perspectives. It does not mean we all need to agree, but when we disagree, remember we are still part of the Barnestormer family. This is not easy. We tend to chaff at opinions that do not align with our own deeply held values, beliefs, and view of what we think is “right and wrong” in the world. You have a right to think and believe in what you do, just realize others may not, and that’s okay. As a Fighter Wing, we all need to believe in what we do and are responsible for producing for our Commonwealth and our Nation. The many become the one. It is our collective commitment and responsibility of working together to be the most respected fighter wing in the Combat Air Force, which produces team unity and the alignment of all of us as individuals to the collective vision that we have for our unit resulting in our success in every mission area. Respect and dignity for all is critical to performance as a team.

Leadership is needed at every level.

There are two types of leadership needed; personal and position or organizational leadership. In my opinion, personal leadership is most important to overall team performance. Personal leadership starts with you, no matter whether or not you are in a formal leadership position or not and regardless of your rank or position in the unit. Personal leadership encompasses how you approach each day and how you hold yourself accountable. Do you ensure you have set out time for your health and fitness? Are you thinking about what you need to do each day to improve upon what you do? Have you thought about making your office team or section better? Have you thought about your customer…the person or functions that use your product or service? Have you thought about ensuring your supervisor or commander gets what they need on time and in the way they need it? Do you have the right attitude? Do you start the day with a list of the most important tasks that need to be accomplished? Personal leadership starts out with you.

Organizational or position leadership is assigned to those of us in supervisory or command positions. Formal leaders cannot abdicate this special privilege within our Wing. We are here to ensure we accomplish the mission and must work hard each day for the members of our Wing. As a natural cycle of command and assignments, commanders and officers come and go faster than our enlisted members. While they are in the position, they are responsible for (Commander Cont. on pg 4) establishing the culture, setting the tone, and charting the right course for their units. They are accountable to their members and should ask for accountability in return. Leaders are not perfect and make mistakes. That’s part of being a leader. Learning from them and making better decisions is the way we improve. In our Wing, the enlisted team makes the mission possible, and as leaders and officers, we must listen and understand first, before making critical decisions. I have found my best coaches have come from the enlisted side.

Over the years, the leaders, both officers and enlisted, that I have found highly effective were able to harness their personal leadership and use that to help the wing achieve organizational goals. Our leaders must work hard each day to set the example and take care of the people who make the mission. Unlike the typical model of where the leader is on top of the organization looking down, I submit to you that, our leaders need to be coaches and mentors every day for their people. Turn the typical leadership pyramid upside down, and the leader is at the bottom of the pyramid, supporting all the others in their command or unit. This is true the higher you go in the organization as a leader. If you are a supervisor or leader in our Wing, your job is to support them by “finding and eliminating” barriers to our people’s success, to provide education and training to improve their skills, to recognize their accomplishments, and to give them corrective feedback when needed. We must be relentless and courageous in this endeavor. It takes time away from what you as leader must accomplish, but is a key responsibility. The bureaucratic beast or machine we all know, throws taskers, suspense’s, road blocks, problems, and issues at us each day. Some are straightforward, while others question relevancy and cost vs. benefit at times. We now can address some of these in question through our IG Office and through Command waivers, but that is only a small amount of what we still must address daily. We must organize project teams and develop new approaches to look for improvements and efficiencies to make us more effective, such as our new approach to ancillary training and our Periodic Health Assessments to gain more time for the important leadership and training needs on the weekends. It is not easy and we may fail, but as leaders, we must look for solutions so we can also make sure we spend time with our team members and get them the training and mentorship needed to be successful in their 104th Fighter Wing career. Leadership at every level is key.

Be accountable to yourself and others.

Accountability comes with personal and organizational leadership. Accountability is critical. Without it, the mission is at a high risk of failure. Once again, it does not matter where in the Wing you work, you are accountable for a job and a level of product or service to the mission. Others are relying on you. Do you hold yourself accountable? Do you meet timelines and suspense’s? Do you tell someone when you cannot or let them find out on the day its due? Do you make a list of what needs to be done and work it every day? Do you care about improving yourself and others? Do others trust you to get the job done? I bet you are thinking about someone right now in our Wing who you can always rely on. Be that person. Be someone who is accountable. Be someone who is trusted. Be someone who does what is right the first time, and most importantly, be someone who helps our wing continue to work towards being the most respected fighter unit in the CAF. We have a proud and historic 70 years of service to the Air National Guard, our Commonwealth, and our Nation. You are the reason we are successful and you are the future of the 104th Fighter Wing. Proud to serve with you!

3rd Annual Command Chief Master Sgt.
Patrick J. Shaughnessy Scholarship

The 104th Fighter Wing Chiefs Council is once again offering two $250 scholarships in 2018. The Command Chief Master Sergeant Patrick J. Shaughnessy Scholarship is available to any enlisted member of the 104th Fighter Wing attending a two or four year college. Chief Shaughnessy was a leader, mentor, and friend to many unit members, both officer and enlisted. He taught and lived the whole Airman concept long before the phrase became popular, and he exemplified Air Force Core Values both on and off duty.

Applicants must submit a 500 word essay (approximately 2 paragraphs) explaining how they incorporate Air Force Core values into their everyday life. Essays must be submitted to Chief Master Sgt. Tom Orifice or Chief Master Sgt. Jim Burke by the close of business on April 8, 2018. Late submissions will not be accepted. Selections will be made by blind committee. The winners will be announced, and checks will be presented during the May RSD.

Please contact Chief Master Sgt. Orifice at x698-1434 or at Thomas.b.orifice.mil@mail.mil, or Chief Master Sgt. Burke at x698-1325 or at James.p.burke2.mil@mail.mil for additional information.
Chiefs Corner: Good Advice
By Chief Master Sgt. Thomas Orifice, LRS Superintendent

It is no secret that all of us need a little advice from time to time. Especially when our personal journeys start to get a bit turbulent. We do not always know who to turn to, or in which direction to look for that perfect bit of guidance. Sometimes the words of wisdom we need can be found in humor, so this month I’m am sharing with you a list of quotes that contain some great logic that can benefit all of us at times. Enjoy.

- "If the enemy is in range, so are you." - Infantry Journal
- "It is generally inadvisable to eject directly over the area you just bombed." - U.S. Air Force Manual
- "Whoever said the pen is mightier than the sword obviously never encountered automatic weapons." - General MacArthur
- "You, you, and you: panic. The rest of you, come with me." - U.S. Marine Corps Gunnery Sgt.
- "Tracers work both ways." - U.S. Army Ordnance
- "Five second fuses only last three seconds." - Infantry Journal
- "Any ship can be a minesweeper. Once." -
- "Never tell the Platoon Sergeant you have nothing to do." - Unknown Marine Recruit
- "If you see a bomb technician running, keep up with him." - USAF Ammo Troop
- "Though I Fly Through the Valley of Death, I Shall Fear No Evil. For I am at 80,000 Feet and Climbing." -
- "You've never been lost until you've been lost at Mach 3." - Paul F. Crickmore (test pilot)
- "The only time you have too much fuel is when you're on fire." -
- "If the wings are traveling faster than the fuselage, it's probably a helicopter -- and therefore, unsafe." -
- "When one engine fails on a twin-engine airplane you always have enough power left to get you to the scene of the crash." -
- "What is the similarity between air traffic controllers and pilots? If a pilot screws up, the pilot dies; If ATC screws up, the pilot dies." -
- "Never trade luck for skill." -
- "Airspeed, altitude and brains. Two are always needed to successfully complete the flight." -
- "Mankind has a perfect record in aviation; we never left one up there!" -
- "Flying the airplane is more important than radioing your plight to a person on the ground incapable of understanding or doing anything about it." -
- "There is no reason to fly through a thunderstorm in peacetime." Sign over squadron ops desk at Davis-Monthan AFB, AZ, 1970
- "You know that your landing gear is down and locked when it takes full power to taxi to the terminal." -
- "As the test pilot climbs out of the experimental aircraft, having torn off the wings and tail in the crash landing, the crash truck arrives; the rescuer sees a bloodied pilot and asks, "What happened?" Welcome to February drill. I have had several members of the unit stop and ask me recently about being able to carry personal firearms on base. In the recent past, there was guidance that allowed personal weapons in specific areas of the base. Certain areas of the base such as the flight line and Building One were considered off limits. New Massachusetts General Law, now strictly restricts any privately owned weapons on base.

Effective 14 November 2017, TAG Policy Memo 18-01 states: The carry of Privately Owned Firearms (POF) is prohibited on military property of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. License to Carry (LTC) holders are no longer authorized to concealed carry on base. The Law Enforcement Officers Safety Act (LEOSA) authorizes credentialed personnel to concealed carry on base. Any LEOSA credentialed officer who wishes to carry on base must file MANG Form 2818, signed by their Commander, and be filed with Security Forces.

Please note that storing a privately owned firearm in your vehicle, while on base is not considered safe storage. I would advise you to leave your firearms at home. In the unlikely event that there is an active shooter on base, remember your training. Run-Hide-Fight! As I say in every article I write, the biggest asset the Air Force has is its people. Take care of yourself and each other. Please have a safe and productive weekend.

First Sergeants Corner: Privately Owned Weapons Prohibited on Base

By Senior Master Sgt. Thomas Moriarty

Don’t carry large loads while walking on snow or ice – you are asking for trouble! If you do carry a load on an icy walk and feel yourself falling, toss your load so that you can break your fall with your arms.

Take small careful steps instead of large ones. When getting out of a vehicle, step, don’t jump. When possible, use handrails, handles – anything that will help you keep your balance. Never run.

Remember that prevention is the best way to stop slips and falls during the winter in icy conditions. On your own property, be sure to shovel driveways, walkways, and sidewalks. Salt high traffic areas if you think ice may form. There are shovels and ice melt located throughout every facility on base. Use these items as necessary.

Although your hands might be cold, don’t put them in your pockets when you are navigating wintry stretches. If you slip, you will need your arms to restore balance. If you fall, your arms will help you to break your fall and land safely.

Wear the proper footwear. Ensure your boots have traction. If your boots are worn, replace them. Ice cleats are available in some areas on base, if needed.

Wing Safety How-Goes It: Slips and Falls

By Master Sgt. Shannon M. Huard, Occupational Safety Manager

With winter weather upon us once again, it is important for you to be aware of some slip and fall prevention strategies. Here at the 104th Fighter Wing slips and falls continue to remain one of our biggest injury generators. Most of the slips/falls that occur are due to untreated snow and/or ice on the ground during the winter months. The following are some tips to help you prevent injury from slips/falls.

Don’t carry large loads while walking on snow or ice – you are asking for trouble! If you do carry a load on an icy walk and feel yourself falling, toss your load so that you can break your fall with your arms.

Take small careful steps instead of large ones. When getting out of a vehicle, step, don’t jump. When possible, use handrails, handles – anything that will help you keep your balance. Never run.

Remember that prevention is the best way to stop slips and falls during the winter in icy conditions. On your own property, be sure to shovel driveways, walkways, and sidewalks. Salt high traffic areas if you think ice may form. There are shovels and ice melt located throughout every facility on base. Use these items as necessary.

Although your hands might be cold, don’t put them in your pockets when you are navigating wintry stretches. If you slip, you will need your arms to restore balance. If you fall, your arms will help you to break your fall and land safely.

Wear the proper footwear. Ensure your boots have traction. If your boots are worn, replace them. Ice cleats are available in some areas on base, if needed.

If you think you are approaching a particularly slick area of snow or ice, don’t be afraid to explore the area with your toe to see how slippery it is before you put your full weight on the area.
MEMORANDUM FOR DISTRIBUTION C
ALMAJCOM/CC

SUBJECT: Our Responsibility to Protect Classified and Operationally-Sensitive Information

In December 2017, we signed a memorandum to all commanders stressing the criticality of operational security to ensure our national security. We emphasized that operational security is a commander’s core business and recent lapses in security judgement have elevated the need to scrutinize our efforts to protect operationally sensitive information. Safeguarding the details of our uniqueness as military operators and tradecraft is a national security imperative. We must hold all Airmen accountable for protecting any information that could provide an advantage to our adversaries and erode our military advantage.

We must relentlessly protect both classified information and any sensitive information that may tip our hand to our enemies as a fighting force. It is not a choice, but a distinct duty we fulfill as guardians of our nation’s security. Furthermore, we must remain alert in avoiding discussions that reveal readiness vulnerabilities. Clearly in times past, we have sought to protect key operational details, but today’s informative standard should be more cautious, and we need your enduring vigilance to ensure compliance.

As we proactively engage the press, we also need to ensure our messages align with the Secretary of Defense’s guidance and operational objectives, while informing the public and reassuring our allies that the Air Force stands ready. If in doubt, run them through command or PA channels to ensure you are in-step with current guidance.

As Secretary Mattis stated in his recent guidance on operational security “Cavalier neglect of protecting non-public information, classified or unclassified, or intentional release of information to unauthorized persons, is a serious matter in this Department. Our duties to office and country demand we preserve and protect all matters vital to defending the Nation.”

We are an Air Force at war and must be ever mindful as we protect our missions and our security. We are confident in your leadership and your ability to rightfully inform the public of the countless operations your highly professional and selfless Airmen conduct each and every day. Thank you for your service and all you do for the nation.

The 104th Fighter Wing recognized the outstanding work and accomplishments of their top performers during the Barnes 44th Annual Awards ceremony held at the Sheraton Hotel, Springfield, Mass., on Jan. 6, 2018.

The ceremony honored members of the unit who have exemplified the Air Force core values and have gone above and beyond the call of duty. These awards recognize members' contributions in leadership, job performance in their primary duties, significant self-improvement, and base and community involvement.

“I do appreciate the fact that my hard work and dedication doesn’t go unnoticed, but honestly I am just doing my job,” said Tech. Sgt. Ashlee Bard, NCO in charge of the Vehicle Operations Section. “I’ve always had the mindset to leave it better than you found it.”

Bard was awarded the Technician of the Year award from the Mission Support Group. During the 2017 Westfield International Air Show, she was appointed as the Busing NCO in charge and successfully provided transportation for over 20,000 visitors with no major traffic or safety incidents.

“There were times I wasn’t sure I’d be able to complete all that was handed to me, but I have a great group of guys that work with me, and they helped us achieve the tasks handed to us,” said Bard. “No way I could have done it all by myself. This office stays busy, but we work well together.”

During 2017, in addition to daily mission requirements, members of the 104th took part in Phase I and Phase II Operational Readiness exercises, went on several deployments, hosted an International Air Show, and participated in a large force exercise called Checkered Flag. Checkered Flag provides many types of fourth and fifth-generation aircraft the chance to practice combat training together to enhance combat airpower capabilities.

“As we recognize our superior performers tonight, I want you to reflect on everything we have accomplished this year,” said Suhr. “We are all patriotic and hard-working.”

- Paul E. Myrick Information Assurance Professionals of the Year – Tech. Sgt. Jackuline Robinson and Tech. Sgt. Lauren Gallagher
- Honor Guard member of the Year – Master Sgt. Lori Trevis

Bioenvironmental Engineers Give Respirator Tests to Protect Health, Instill Confidence
By Airman 1st Class Randall S. Burlingame

Members of the Air Force are first introduced to wearing a gas mask when they go through the gas chamber and undertake chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear training during basic military training. All Airmen receive gas mask fit tests to ensure issued masks fit properly increasing personal protection to maintain war-time readiness.

But the training doesn’t stop there. Airmen will continue to have their gas masks and respirators fitted to include additional training, especially those in career fields that use respirators regularly in the performance of their jobs such as the Air Craft Structural Repair shop, Fuel cell maintenance shop as well as the Emergency responders on base which include the Fire Department, Explosive Ordnance Disposal members and Emergency Management and Bioenvironmental themselves.

The respirator and gas mask fit tests conducted by the Airmen of the Bioenvironmental Engineering shop at the 104th Fighter Wing allow the Airmen using them to feel confident that they are being protected from CBRN hazards with the gas mask and chemical hazards with the respirators which allows for greater focus on the task at hand.

“It definitely helps,” said Mike Cote, a firefighter of 19 years for the 104th. “The test checks the seal of the mask and lets you know it’s 100%. That gives you confidence, allowing you to do what you have to do knowing the respirator will work.”

According to Master Sgt. Jeffery D. Allard, the Bioenvironmental NCO in charge and the unit's industrial hygienist, the fit tests for personnel on the respirator protection program which includes the firefighters is OSHA mandated and something all Airmen who require respirator use must have done annually. Gas masks on the other hand is a onetime requirement unless special conditions occur which could require a refit.

“Allard said he likes to believe the fit tests are making an impact on protecting the health of Airmen. “You will not know if your mask is going to work effectively if you don’t get fit tested,” said Allard. “It’s very important that people take the wearing of respiratory protection seriously. Their health or even their life may depend on it.”

The industrial hygienist said that Airmen must also get their mask refitted whether it is the issued Mk50 gas mask or a shop issued respirator anytime they gain or lose 10% of their body weight, have serious dental work done that changes their facial features, or if there is a change in the mask being used and hopes supervisors will help to disseminate this important information to their Airmen.

If you are in need of a Gas Mask fit test which is a readiness requirement for the fit test report to be placed in your deployment folder please call Bioenvironmental Engineering at x698-1317.

Lt. Michael J. Avalone, bioenvironmental engineering officer in the 104th medical group, prepares Daniel Estee, Lt. Firefighter at the 104th FW, for his annual respiratory fit test alongside Master Sgt. Jeffery D. Allard, the NCO in charge of the bioenvironmental engineering shop. All 24 firefighters come through the shop to have their annual mask fit tests conducted. (U.S. Air National Guard photo by Airman 1st Class Randall S. Burlingame)
Financial Coaching Schedule

Did you know the 104th has its own financial coach? That’s right, Gil is a CPA and a CFP®, and he works out of the Equal Opportunity Office. Below is the schedule of the financial workshops being offered on upcoming Wednesdays in the Equal Opportunity office upstairs in Building 1, or in the Chaplin's Building in their classroom if the group is too large for the EO office.

The Financial Coaching workshop schedule will be as follows at 10:00 a.m. on the selected dates:

Feb. 7 - Investing in TSP Funds 101 "It might be rocket science!"
14 Feb. - Seven ways to lose all your money and retire broke! Happy Valentine's Day
Feb. 28 - Tax Deductions for Military Members (Be prepared for Tax Season).

Interested attendees are asked to email Gil to express an interest in the class and any topics they would like covered in future workshops.

Military OneSource has health and wellness coaches to help you set goals and create a plan to reach them. Everyone would benefit from having a coach cheer us on through life transitions, weight loss, nutrition, managing stress. The program is free to Active Duty, National Guard, Reserve Members, veterans and immediate family members.

The Alcohol Treatment Navigator –
www.alcohotreatment.niaaa.nih.gov
Are you concerned about you or a loved ones level of drinking? In the past year have you found that drinking or being sick from drinking interferes with taking care of your home, family or meeting work expectations? In the past year have you found yourself or a loved one in situations during or after drinking that put you at risk of hurting yourself or others (driving, using machinery, getting into arguments or fights, having unsafe sex)? The Alcohol Treatment Navigator provides education and screening tools to help adults or an adult loved one learn about alcohol misuse, treatment and medication options, as well as support resources. If you have concerns for an adolescent, a link to adolescent resources is provided.

Family to Family Education Program –
www.namiwm.org
Families dealing with brain disorders and mental illness of a loved one, young or old, can benefit greatly from the support and knowledge of others living the same experience. The National Alliance on Mental Illness of western MA is offering at no cost to the public 12 weekly classes designed to help caregivers understand and support their loved ones while maintaining their own well-being. Classes start on Tuesday February 27, 6 – 8:30 pm in Holyoke and pre-registration is required. Call the NAMI-western MA Office at 413-786-9139 to find out more and to register.

Behavioral Health Network Crisis Services –
www.bhninc.org
Mobile Crisis services available 24/7 in Western MA. If you, a loved one or friend is in crisis, resources are available to provide guidance and on-site intervention during a mental health crisis. The first step is to call 1-800-437-5922 to speak to a provider for guidance. BHN also has Crisis Clinics in Westfield (77 Mill St) 413-568-6386 and Springfield (417 Liberty St) 413-733-6661, no appointment needed however calling ahead for same day visit is beneficial.

Visit the DPH SharePoint page or call the DPH office x698-1536 for additional resources and programs.

Show Proposal: Thank You For Your Service
A public access program about our veterans, produced by ChicopeeTV

Interested in being a part? Contact Wade Wofford: pwofford@cpsge.org / 413-594-3487 x4605

Thank You For Your Service is an episodic 30-minute program committed to giving voice to the men and women who have served (or currently serve) in the armed forces.

Cast & Crew:
1) Producer/Director: Wade Wofford
2) Camera Ops/Editor(s): ChicopeeTV staff and interns
3) Show Host: TBD
4) Special Guests: Change with each show, dependent upon subject matter

The Show’s Purpose:
1) To provide veterans a place to tell their stories.
2) To document the experiences of our veterans, as a living historical document.
3) To educate the viewing public about the realities of military service.

Show Design:
The show will be very simple to produce, as it would shoot in the ChicopeeTV studio at Chicopee Comprehensive High School with minimal pre-production necessary. Each episode will be a conversation-based journey through the memory of 1-2 veterans (depending on how much each veteran has to say / how “big” their stories are).

Our host will be in the studio in one chair; the guest veteran (GV) will be seated opposite.

The host will have communicated with the GV in advance to determine a few talking points.

Sample questions that our host might ask of every guest:
- Tell us about two or three of the closest relationships you formed during your military service.
- How did serving in the military affect you as an individual?
- If you had advice to give to the next generation of those serving in the armed forces, what would it be?
- Did you witness any acts of heroism during your service?
- What are your thoughts on the politics that were going on in the U.S. during your service? How did that affect your service?

There will, sometimes, be pre-produced packages - many of which might repeat across multiple episodes. These packages will hi-lite history surrounding the service of that week’s GV. For example, if this week’s GV served during “Operation: Desert Storm,” there might be a package during that show that details that war...how it began, methods of warfare, major events within the war, etc. That package would “roll in” during that GV’s show, and likely also during the show of future GVs who also served during that era.

We have a number of other ideas that we may roll into the show, and are excited for ideas that others interested in the show might bring to the table...two friends appearing together who served together, the spouses and/or children of veterans being on speaking about their loved one’s service, etc.
